Reading corner

With the Euros underway, here are Miss Blakeney's top football picks!

Reading at home

It is policy at Roseberry that children are reading at home at least 3 times per week.

It is proven that reading at home for 10 minutes each can significantly boost how well they do at school.

We are currently reading:

The book I am reading at the moment is Hamnet by Maggie O'Farrell. It's a historical fiction novel set in Stratford-upon-Avon and is about William Shakespeare's family (even though he's not in it much yet). I'm really enjoying it so far and it has encouraged me to do some research of my own into what life was like then - the plague was a dangerous threat for people at that time. One of my friends read it and she said she cried so I've got my tissues ready!

I have been recommended this book by so many people that I was really looking forward to reading it. I am enjoying it so far because I like books about different people's lives. I also like the way that the author has left little clues about what has happened to the main character in her past and is helping us to figure it out bit by bit - this makes it a little bit like a mystery story too.
